Division of Emergency Management: Severe Winter Weather Preparedness

Winter storms can bring extreme cold, freezing rain, sleet, heavy snowfall, ice, and high winds. These storms can cause disruptions to transportation, heat, power, and communications. With atmospheric changes resulting in warmer and shorter winters, we can expect heavier snowfall as a result of more moisture being stored in the atmosphere. Be prepared and have a plan for when you may be impacted by severe winter weather. Plan to stay indoors when possible and have emergency supplies that can last one to two weeks if a winter storm is approaching. Use the following tips to help you and your family prepare:

- Winterize your home. Insulate exposed pipes, clean chimney and caulk/weather strip doors and windows.
- If you must go outside dress properly. Keep extremities well covered and dry if possible.
- Set aside drinking water as you may lose access to clean drinking water if power goes out.
- Have a snow shovel and ice-melting products on hand. And shovel smart! Dress warm, move small amounts of snow, hydrate and take frequent breaks!
- Sign up to receive free emergency alerts from the City at <https://www.cityoflaurel.org/230/Stay-Informed>.

Keep you and your family safe this winter! For more Winter Preparedness Tips, visit <https://www.weather.gov/safety/winter>.
