A New Era of Community Support Begins:

Craig A. Moe Laurel Multiservice Center: Ready to Serve on September 10th

The City of Laurel is set to open the new Craig A. Moe Laurel Multiservice Center on September 10th, expanding vital support for individuals experiencing homelessness in the community. This facility will serve as a comprehensive resource hub, offering a safe space for adults to access essential services.

The center, named after former Mayor Craig A. Moe, who served Laurel for over two decades will provide a wide range of services, including meals, showers, clothing, personal hygiene kits, and laundry facilities. Additionally, personal-mail distribution services will be available to help individuals stay connected. A key feature is the reception desk, where staff members greet and guide visitors to the services they need.

The Craig A. Moe Laurel Multiservice Center also offers services through partnerships with community organizations. These include 19 transitional housing bedrooms, seasonal shelters, mental health and basic medical services, literacy and life skills training, and workforce assistance programs. These partnerships ensure that individuals not only receive immediate help but also have access to resources that can aid in long-term stability.

“The Craig A. Moe Multiservice Center is more than just a building—it’s a lifeline for those who need support the most,” said Mayor Keith R. Sydnor. “This center embodies our city’s commitment to supporting our most vulnerable residents. It provides essential services, but more importantly, it offers a pathway to a better future for many in our community. We are proud to honor Craig Moe’s legacy with a facility that reflects his lifelong dedication to serving others.”

Moe's tenure as mayor was the longest in the city's history, following six terms on the City Council. His public service began at sixteen with the Laurel Volunteer Fire Department, highlighting his early commitment to the community.

During his administration, Moe oversaw key initiatives such as the redevelopment of Laurel Mall, the creation of the Affordable Housing Program, and the Main Street Economic Development Program. He also established the Winter Holiday Celebration Parade, a tradition that continues today. Moe’s legacy continues through this center, reflecting his mission to make Laurel a better place for all.

Inspiring Local Students to Take Flight: Mayor Keith R. Sydnor Introduces Drone Certification Program for High Schoolers

Mayor Keith R. Sydnor is excited to announce an innovative new program that will empower Laurel's youth to soar to new heights—literally. Starting in October 2024, the City of Laurel will launch a Drone Certification Program for high school students, in partnership with Alpha Aviator, a leading provider of drone training and certification. This initiative is exclusively available to City of Laurel residents and aims to equip students with cutting-edge skills in a rapidly growing field.

The Drone Certification Program offers a unique opportunity for students to gain hands-on experience with drone technology, learn about aviation regulations, and earn their Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) drone pilot certification. This certification will not only enhance their resumes but also open doors to exciting career paths in industries such as aerial photography, surveying, public safety, and more.

Recruitment for the program will begin in October 2024, with applications open to high school students who reside within the City of Laurel. The program will be conducted in collaboration with Alpha Aviator, a trusted partner known for its commitment to quality training and student success. Mayor Sydnor shared his vision for the program, stating, "This initiative is about more than just flying drones—it's about inspiring our young people to explore new possibilities and equipping them with the skills they need to succeed in the future. I'm proud that Laurel is leading the way in offering such a valuable educational opportunity to our residents."

First in Prince George's County, Maryland: City of Laurel Leads the Way in Student Hiring Under MD's Blueprint for Education

The City of Laurel is proud to announce a groundbreaking initiative that positions the city as a leader in student hiring under Maryland's Blueprint for Education.

Starting in September 2024, the City of Laurel will welcome students to work in the Department of Information Technology, with an anticipation of additional students joining the Department of Communications and Department of Public Works in the near future. This marks the first time in Prince George's County that a local government has embraced such an initiative, reflecting Laurel's commitment to fostering educational growth and workforce development.

Mayor Keith R. Sydnor expressed his enthusiasm for the program, stating, "This initiative is a testament to Laurel's commitment to education and innovation. By opening our doors to students, we are investing in their futures and the future of our community. I am confident that this program will serve as a model for other municipalities across the state."

Safety first: Laurel Introduces Cutting-Edge Features to Stop Trash Trucks and Street Sweepers in Their Tracks

The City of Laurel is excited to announce a groundbreaking partnership with the Local Government Insurance Trusts (LGIT) aimed at enhancing the safety of the City's workers and employees.

The Department of Public Works (DPW) received a $15,000 grant from LGIT to install advanced sensors on the backs of several trucks. These sensors, developed by Global Sensor Systems, feature backup protection technology that automatically applies the brakes when obstacles are detected, adding an extra layer of safety for drivers, pedestrians, and property. Inside the cab, drivers receive visual and audible alerts when the system is activated. According to Global Sensor Systems, the truck can back up normally if no objects are detected by the Search-Eye Sensors.

The installation process, which took place in August, began with mounting the sensors on the trucks and connecting the necessary machinery. Global Sensor Systems and the DPW collaborated to weld protective cases for the sensors onto the trucks. The system was then tested, successfully stopping the truck six feet away from three upright trash cans. Training was provided to all DPW truck drivers on how to use and troubleshoot the sensors, ensuring they could address any issues if the machinery malfunctioned.

While the braking system serves as an extra set of eyes, it does not replace spotters at the back of the trucks. If an obstacle is detected, the spotters still need to exit the truck to assess the situation. According to Global Sensor Systems' website, as long as the Search-Eye Sensors don't detect any objects behind the truck, the driver can back up as usual.

Mayor Keith R. Sydnor personally tested the technology by sitting in the passenger seat of a truck reversing towards a trash can. The truck automatically stopped within six feet of the obstacle. "This is a great project for the City of Laurel, our workers, and the community at large," says Mayor Sydnor. "Safety is always a top priority, and this new technology represents a significant step forward in protecting our employees and residents."

By investing in innovative solutions like this, we're not only improving the safety of our operations but also setting an example for other municipalities to follow. I'm proud to see our city leading the way in adopting advanced technologies that make a real difference."

Historic Milestone: Fort Meade Appoints First Female Garrison Commander after 107 Years

Colonel Yolanda Gore is settling into her historic role as the first female garrison commander in the 107-year history of Fort George G. Meade, Maryland, after assuming command of the Army's second-largest post in early August.

Gore, the second person of color to hold this position, expressed her deep honor at becoming the 89th Garrison Commander of Fort Meade. "I'm excited about the prospect of meeting new people and taking on the challenges this role will bring. It's an exhilarating feeling to envision what lies ahead," she said in an Army release.

A native of South Carolina, Col. Gore has served in the Army since being commissioned in 2002. Before assuming her new role at the Army's home for intelligence and cyber operations, she served as the former strategic initiative chief for the Army's Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel at the Pentagon.

Mayor Keith R. Sydnor congratulated Col. Gore on her historic appointment and expressed his eagerness to collaborate on City of Laurel initiatives that could benefit her staff of over 64,000 personnel. Col. Gore emphasized her commitment to engaging with the community stating "I'm eager to collaborate with community leaders and stakeholders to ensure we meet the needs of everyone at Fort Meade," she stated.

Mayor's Summer Intern Program 2024

Local Youth Bring Fresh Energy to All Departments at City Hall

The City of Laurel Mayor's Summer Intern Program concluded its latest season, offering a unique opportunity for students to immerse themselves in local government operations. This year, interns were matched with their top three departmental choices, providing a diverse and enriching experience across various city departments.

The program was designed to give interns a comprehensive view of municipal governance and public service. Each intern was placed in a different department, allowing them to explore various facets of city management and discover their interests within public administration. Interns worked within departments such as Public Works, Parks and Recreation, Economic and Community Development, Communications, and more. This arrangement allowed them to experience the intricacies of their chosen department and understand how it contributed to the city's overall functioning.

Whether working on community outreach projects, assisting with research, or supporting event coordination, each intern gained hands-on experience and valuable insights into the workings of local government. Interns participate in meaningful projects and daily tasks, providing them with a realistic view of what it's like to work in local government. Each intern is paired with a mentor from their assigned department. These mentors provide guidance, support, and feedback, helping interns navigate their roles and make the most of their summer experience.

It was incredible to see how this year's interns grew and what new perspectives they brought to the City of Laurel. Their fresh ideas and enthusiasm made a positive impact, and we enjoyed celebrating their achievements throughout the summer. For more details about the City of Laurel's Summer Intern Program and to find out how you can get involved in next year's initiative, please visit our website at www.cityoflaurel.org.

My Time Inside the Communications Department

My time working at the City of Laurel Communications Department this summer has been amazing! I used to think that this building was here for show and that there was nothing going on in here, but after I joined the Mayor's Summer Intern Program I learned how much fun it was. My mom persuaded me to give the program a chance because I really liked photography. I didn't expect much from here, but I got lucky and was put into the Communications Department where they don't only just do TV for Laurel TV, but I also learned about photography, videography, podcasts, and so many other things. ~Abdulkamil Amusa, Junior, CMIT

Running from 6 pm to 10 pm, the program aimed to ensure a secure space where young residents could enjoy their summer. "Our overarching goal is to create an environment where our youth can have fun while learning and growing," Mayor Sydnor remarked. The initiative effectively promoted community engagement by uniting youth, families, and local organizations. It provided youth development opportunities through mentorship, counseling, and skill-building activities.

RESIDENT Q&A

Question: There has been an increase in Spotted Lantern Fly, especially along the river. What can the City do about it?

Answer: Spotted Lantern Fly are new to Laurel this year. They are a highly invasive species from Asia, which evolved in the same habitat as Tree of Heaven, another highly invasive species.

Tree of Heaven has been growing in Riverfront Park for many years. With many mature trees near the path, it is not uncommon to see large clusters of this colorful insect. While they may look gross, these flying bugs generally do not kill the trees and they do not bite. These bugs will eventually become food for local wildlife. Spraying them is not cost effective and may harm other species.

- Let's stay diligent as a community during the back-to-school transition. We should expect increased traffic around school zones and focus on pedestrian safety, enforcing school zones, and managing parking. Additionally, school funding, teacher shortages, and student mental health resources are key areas we should focus on this new academic year.
- As flu season approaches, we should see an increase in vaccination drives and public health campaigns to prevent outbreaks. Ongoing concerns about COVID-19 variants and vaccination rates will continue to shape local health efforts. As a community, let's do what we can to practice and promote safe and healthy behaviors.
